Experience:

Jere Gibber has worked for the National Preservation Institute since 1991 and has been the executive director since 1997. NPI is a nonprofit organization educating those involved in the management, preservation, and stewardship of cultural heritage. NPI provides scheduled and customized professional training in historic preservation and cultural resource management through seminars and on-demand, online training and webinars.

She serves as the administrator for a cooperative agreement between the National Preservation Institute and the Department of Defense Legacy Resource Management Program, implementing the Nationwide Approach to the National Historic Preservation Act Section 110 Survey Project.

She has managed grants from the Historic Preservation Education Foundation, the Institute of Museum and Library Services, The National Center for Preservation Technology and Training, National Park Service, the National Endowment for the Arts, the National Trust for Historic Preservation, and The Virginia Foundation for the Humanities. She has managed several National Park Service cooperative agreements for training and services for the National NAGPRA Program, the Northeast Region, and the Veterans Administration.

Through NPI, she has administered four Department of Defense Historic Building Workshops, a Preserving the Historic Road conference, and Women in Preservation (WIP) events. She jointly manages Preservation Roundtable, an informal gathering of historic preservation professionals and advocates held in Washington, DC, with the Preservation Action Foundation.

She has been a consultant to a variety of clients on conference coordination, including the DC Heritage Tourism Coalition; the Latrobe Chapter, Society of Architectural Historians; and the National Capital Area Chapter, American Planning Association. Previously she worked as an editor for CEHP Incorporated, a cultural resource management firm; an intern for Scenic America; an assistant director for the Staten Island Historical Society; and as an administrative officer for the Office of Historic Alexandria. She has been on the Friends of Historic Huntley Board of Directors since 1992 and has held the positions of treasurer and newsletter editor.
